Dear Mr. Hempfling:

I have received the communications you sent via facsimile to the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) on March 10, 2004.

In order for the FBI to initiate an investigation of any complaint we receive, specific facts must be present to indicate that a violation of federal law within our investigative jurisdiction has occurred. As you will recall, in 2002, you provided similar information to our office and were advised that this matter did not warrant investigation by the FBI. Unfortunately, the additional information you provided on March 10, 2004, failed to convince me that our earlier decision was made in error. Additionally, it would appear that your complaints are being addressed by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and, possibly, by the Federal Communications Commission. Therefore, I regret that we are unable to provide any assistance to you.

You may, however, wish to consult an attorney of your own choice to determine what, if any, legal options you may have concerning this matter. If you do not have an attorney, you may want to contact your local chapter of the American Bar Association or Legal Aid Society for possible assistance.

Sincerely,

Thomas E. O'Neill
